Your first day at your new job is one of the most important days you will have for success. This ensures that you will know exactly where you are going the next day. 2) Arrive early your first day. The first day you will have to learn where to place your belongings, meet your supervisor, and be shown your job. All of these things take time and extra time should be planned so that you are prepared to work at the start of your shift. 3) Work safely and ask any questions you do not understand about your work. 4) Be enthusiastic and energetic towards your work. Supervisors will judge you based on how they perceive your performance. 5) Make certain that you record your hours worked according to that companies payroll procedures. If you need to punch a time clock, have your supervisor sign your timecard, or have the supervisor sign your timecard. All of this will effect how you are paid.
